

Difference Between Group and Team

Group and Team both consist of people, but they work in different ways.

Group:

- People are together but may work independently.
- Each member focuses on their own task.
- Success depends on individual performance.
- Less collaboration among members.
- Accountability is individual.

Team:

- People work together toward a common goal.
- Members coordinate and support each other.
- Success depends on the whole team's performance.
- High collaboration among members.
- Accountability is shared.

Example of a Group: A class of students where everyone studies individually.

Example of a Team: Five students working together on a presentation.

Easy Formula:

Group = Together but working separately

Team = Together and working together

Important: Every team is a group, but not every group is a team.
